CFDs (Forex, ETFs, Stocks, Commodities, Indices and cryptocurrencies)

Nature	Type	Description
One-off costs	Spread	The difference between the bid (sell) price and the ask (buy) price. The difference is presented in pips and reflects the cost of opening a position. Spread is dependent on many different factors, including, but not limited to, the underlying liquidity and volatility, time of day and notional trade size. For example, if the underlying asset/ EUR/USD is trading at 1.2029, our ask (buy) price might be 1.2030 and the bid (sell) price might be 1.2028. The spread in this example is (ask-sell price) = 2 pips
One-off costs	Mark-up Mark-down	The Company may also apply markup or markdown upon the prices received from its price feed providers in accordance with its capacity as a market maker. The adjustment of spread and/or markups and markdowns depends on several factors such as the market conditions, volatility of the market and liquidity of the assets.

Ongoing costs	Swap fee	The Company reserves the right to charge the Client a swap fee of 0.01% – 0.5% and in extreme circumstances up to 1.7% of the face value of the position for keeping a position open overnight. The swap fee from Friday to Saturday will be 3 (“three”) times higher than the normal swap fee. The swap fee can be subject to changes in the future.
	Slippage	Slippage may occur when trading in CFDs. Slippage is the difference between the expected price of an Order, and the price the Order is actually executed at. In some situations, at the time an Order is presented for execution, the specific price shown to the Client may not be available; therefore, the Order will be executed close to or a number of pips away from the Client’s requested Price. Slippage can occur at times of low liquidity or high volatility (e.g. after economic events or news announcements) and is a normal element of trading in CFDs. Lastly, slippage might be positive or negative.
Other costs	Dormant account fees	In the absence of any account activity for a period of at least ninety (90) consecutive days, an amount of $10 (Dollar ten or the equivalent amount in another currency on the day of deduction of the fee) every month in order to maintain the account, on the condition that the Client account has the available funds.
